SOME DIPLOMATS IN WASHINGTON SAY GERMANY WANTS WAR

this morning to the effect that officials of the German Embancy have outlined the position of the German Government towards the American note regarding the sinking of the Lustiania and have declared that the reply would be a polite but firm refund to scare submarine warfare against telligerent merchant autpa-

"It was pointed out that the Embancy itself so far to ignorant of the terms of the American note, that it had received no instructions whatever from the German Government regarding the note. and finally. It was declared that no official connected with the Embassy had expressed any opinion on the subject at all "

It is known positively that the United States Communent has had no conversations either in Washington or in the foreign capitals with other Governments concerning the note or the course that will be pursued should Germany refuse to comply.

If the note contains references to alleged impropriety in putting out a warning to Americans in the form of newspaper advertisements, the German Embassy is likely to take exception, pointing out that Secretary Bryan himself first made the warning public in giving out the German statement of February 14.

SPECULATION AS TO GERMANY'S REPLY.

In some quarters friendly to Germany the impression prevailed that the Berlin Government would accede to the American demands and state its expectation that the United States would endeavor to secure the unrestricted passage of foodstuffs and condition contraband consigned to Mass Meeting at Tower Hill the civilian population of Germany.

It is reported in some diplomatic circles that Germany has decided in advance of the delivery of the note from the United States to defy our Government and reject the American demands for full reparation for the killing of her citizens on the Lusitania and for other invasions of our rights. It is declared that Germany is even eager for an excuse to break off relations with the United States.

According to diplomats, Germany's greatest single desire is to block the allies' supply of American-made guns and ammunition, and to do this she would welcome an open rupture with the United States. Russia's only hope, according to the German view, lies in the continued importations from America. In Germany the American army is not taken seriously, the American navy would be of negligible value in the present conflict, and the hostility of the United States would be more than balanced by the reduced quantity of war munitions shipped from this country.

As stated in effect, in his note to Germany, the President is satisfied the time has come when the United States must take a stand in the name of humanity, that the whole structure of international law and neutral that 19,000 non-naturalized alien en even more intense to-day. American rights, erected during the last 2,000 years, shall not be destroyed by brute force at the will of a single Government.

In German circles here it was said to-day that confidential advices indicate there never was any intention of sinking the Lusitania. Her torpedoing was deliberate, it is stated, but it was believed that she actually was almost unsinkable and all that was hoped was to fill several of her water-tight compartments, so that she would have to be beached or have her passengers and crew taken off the ship, sinking later in shallow water.

A German, who talks authoritatively, declared that German expressions of regret are more than mere formality.

"It never was intended or desired that a life should be lost," he said. "None would have been lost had the Lusitania not carried a cargo of explosives. The torpedo evidently caused the detonation of the vessel's explosive cargo, and all those lives were lost."
